Pot & Garden Plants

With both Ady and our buyers taking a much needed break, it has resulted in little competition in the halls this week. Whilst the halls are still filled with colour the reoccurrence of the grey weather dampens spirits. Buyers move to things they can sell in any weather, heaving away all hydrangeas and the laurels leaping out the door, and another week where prime roses do not hang around

Cut Flowers

Trade remains strong for all floral delights, with buyers taking a particular interest in English varieties. New this week is a luscious Achillea assortment, drawing bids from the connoisseur on all days. Cornflower sales are still cracking, as is the demand for Statice mixtures. Irises and Stocks also find favour with our buyers this week, with only limited imported product to be seen. Sweet William become a distant memory as their season ends.

Fruit & Vegetables

Outside influences effect both the growers' and buyers' minds. Whether it be the football tournament currently on or which political party to cast their vote to, for once the weather comes later in peoples' minds. This all said a wide spectrum of produce is to be seen during the week, with trade brisk for most lines. Peas make their seasonal debut and receive a host of bids.
